The photos of the Katta and Vari lemurs in this manual are taken by Jens Søeborg in Knuthenborg Park & Safari, which is situated on the island of Lolland in Denmark. It is a safari park, which attracts many tourists – from Denmark and abroad – each year.

The counts of Knuth have transformed their park to a safari park since 1950 and it is a great place to visit if you should visit Denmark.

Lemur Empowerment

Lemur totem

Lemur - "Spirits of the Night" (latin:"lemures") Ability to access the knowledge of the forests, seeing the unseen, remaining above the fray, ability to navigate through the forest, ability to grasp concepts above the din of life. Spirit Walk Ministry.

Some info from "Lemurs" by Lezle Williams:

Physical Description:

The lemur is a kind of primate, which means it is related to apes and humans. You would never know it from the way it looks though! There are many kinds of lemurs, but most have long, pointy noses, which contribute to their excellent sense of smell. Each type of lemur looks very different. They vary color from reddish brown to gray, and come in all different sizes, too. The smallest lemur, the Pygmy Mouse lemur, weighs only one ounce. But the biggest lemurs, the Indri and Diademed Sifaka lemurs, can weigh up to fifteen pounds, which is about as much as a big cat. The first two pictures are of Katta lemurs.

Communication:

Lemurs use their sense of smell to communicate with each other. These primates have scent glands on their bottoms and on their feet that leave odors on surfaces they cross. When other lemurs pass by, they smell those odors and can tell that another lemur has been there. Lemurs have big, bushy tails that they wave in the air as another form of communication. These big tails also help lemurs balance when they leap from tree to tree.

Black Vari

Habits:

Most lemurs are arboreal, which means they spend most of their time in trees and bushes. They have a good grip for hanging on to branches. Only the Ringtail lemur spends most of its time on the ground. Usually lemurs that are awake during the day live in groups. Besides using scent glands and tails to communicate, they also make noises. Nocturnal lemurs, that are active at night, tend to live alone.

Status:

Out of the fifty different kinds of lemurs, ten of those types are critically endangered, seven are endangered, and nineteen are considered vulnerable.

Lemur Facts

- Most lemurs live for about 18 years.
- Ruffed lemurs can live 26 years in captivity.
- Lemurs cannot hang by their tails from trees like monkeys.
- Lemurs have a keen sense of smell and good vision.
- Lemurs have opposable thumbs and long toes.
